

Margarete Nuber

In discursive consulting, my most important tools are to listen very carefully and make my formulations as precise as possible.

Vita

Margarete Nuber (b. 1962) earned a degree in German literature, history, and philosophy before entering the IT field and gathering the 20+ years of experience she now brings to Metaplan. For many years, she was responsible as a de-escalation manager for business-critical projects at SAP Switzerland. Her specific focus areas are organizational design and facilitating change processes.

In addition to her activities as a discursive consultant, Margarete Nuber is also a trained mediator.

Personal interests

Margarete enjoys structuring her leisure hours with reading, sports, and music. She especially likes listening to jazz and contemporary music; she herself plays alto saxophone. To stay both physically and mentally fit, she has practiced traditional Japanese karate for many years.
